Report Delegation to National Convention Unanimously
for Coolidge

BELIEVE HE'LL ACCEPT
Business Men of State Would Draft President for Coming Term.

BY DAVID L. WRENCE
Copyright, 1927 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—The New Jersey delegation to the Republican national convention will be unanimous for Calvin
Coolidge in the opinion of E. C. Stokes, Republican state chairman, who has just sent out a letter calling for the organization of a Coolidge draft committee. Mr. Stokes, who is a former governor of the state and is planning to enter the primaries himself for the United States senate, disclosed Thursday that the replies from all over New Jersey constituted the most remarkable thing he had ever experienced in his long career in politics. He said that although no funds were asked for or needed, he had received many offers of voluntary contributions—something which he adds is itself unusual. Business men and business institutions have said in their replies that they believed in Coolidge as President Coolidge would accept the nomination.

TO ENDORSE COOLIDGE
Senator Edge of New Jersey, has advised Mr. Stokes that he believes the state delegation should go to the national convention in the name of Coolidge, so all elements in the party organization are at the moment ready to participate in the draft movement.
Mr. Stokes is proceeding on the assumption that Mr. Coolidge was sincere in his expressed preference to retire but that the call of duty to gra-tificate his personal desire in peace as well as in war. Mr. Stokes' letter read as follows:

"President Coolidge's announcement is based on the principle that the people should select their candidate for high office rather than the candidates selected by the party. This is a governmental principle inaugurated by our forefathers and is a dutiable exercise of self government. I propose therefore, a formation of a club to crystalize what I believe to be almost the unanimous sentiment of this country.
The nomination of Calvin Coolidge as president of the United States to be known as the Coolidge Draft Club.
We draft soldiers in time of war,
why should we not draft officials in time of peace? Do you favor this movement?"

Mr. Stokes stated that he has had only two unfavorable replies out of the many thousands of letters he sent out.
He also said that in his talks with leading Republicans and leading business men he has asked what candidate they prefer if Mr. Coolidge were eliminated, and invariably the answer has been "Mr. Coolidge." In peace as well as in war, Mr. Stokes says that in nine months a candidate cannot be developed to the point of unanimity in the party and that the very disunion which is beginning to manifest itself over the matter of second choice is just the condition of affairs that the party will find it politically wise to exercise the power of drafting the president for renomination.

SENATORS' WAR STAND SCORED AT MARINETTE

Milwaukee Congressman Denounces Referendum Favored by Rob and Blaine

Marinette—(AP)—Congressman John
C. Schaefer, Milwaukee created a stir at the ninth annual convention of the Wisconsin department of the American legion in session here Friday when he, without mentioning any names, strongly criticized United States Senators Robert M. La Follette and John J.
Blaine for their stand on a war referendum. The Milwaukee congressman was one of the speakers of the first business session of the three day meeting.

The afternoon will be devoted to the annual parade and it was estimated that approximately 20,000 persons will witness the two-mile procession. A contest between 18 bands and drum corps will be held late Friday.

In his address Mr. Schaefer said, "I wonder how many of the veterans of Wisconsin gave consideration to a plan in the platform enunciated in the fall of 1926 by a certain group of candidates for public office.
WOULD DESTROY NATION
"This plank was broadcast from one end of Wisconsin to the other in printed form as well as at meetings for discussion of public questions. In my judgment, it is one which, if written into law, might mean the destruction of the nation.

"I refer to the plank sponsored by both of the United States senators from this state, neither of whom ever was an army or navy uniform which required a referendum vote to be taken before war could be declared even to repel an invading enemy.

"It is astonishing to note the apathy of many of our war veterans to this dangerous plank since they know that if carried into effect, an invading foreign country could lay waste to our homes, and the nation be overcome and destroyed while awaiting the ponderous machinery of a nation-wide referendum.

"Such a plank is vicious and un-American and should be vigorously opposed at all times by free Americans who have the interest of the nation and our people at heart.

WANT EXPERIENCED MEN
The congressman also stressed that the American legion should demand that high positions in the state military system should be filled by those who have had experience.

"It is an insult to the Wisconsin veterans to have a man made colonel in the Wisconsin National guard who has never worn a uniform in the time of war and who was anti-military during the world war," he said.

Frank J. Schneller of Neenah, is picked to win the commandship of the State department at the election
Saturday. H. L. Garner of Madison is the other candidate mentioned.

DEFENSE WILL CARRY CASE TO U. S. TRIBUNAL

Fair Will Meet Death Next Monday Unless New Stay
Is Given Them

Boston—(AP)—Counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti announced Friday that they will apply to the United States supreme court for a writ of certiorari
in behalf of the condemned men.
It will be based on points involving the "due process" clause of the United States constitution, they said.
Arthur D. Hill, chief of defense counsel, made the announcement.

Ten certified copies of the record in the Sacco-Vanzetti case have been ordered from the clerk of Norfolk Superior court as required by the practice of the United States supreme court, he said. "We propose to go today to see Chief Justice Hall of the superior court," he added, "and state to him that we are able to file a petition for a writ of certiorari with the supreme court of the United States
based on the federal question relating to violation of the due process clause of the constitution of the United States.

"We shall then ask Chief Justice Hall to grant a stay of sentence until the record can be printed in accordance with the rules of the supreme court of the United States.
"We believe that Chief Justice Hall has authority to grant this stay
under the case of Bryan versus Bates, 12, Allen, 201."

RELIEF IS REFUSED
Boston—(AP)—The full bench of the Massachusetts supreme court Friday refused relief to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, whose respite from execution for murder expires at midnight on Aug. 23. In a decision signed by the four justices, who heard the arguments, the court overruled exceptions of their counsel to the refusal of Judge Thayer of the superior court, to grant a revocation of sentence, a stay of execution and a new trial, and the refusal of Justice Sanderson of the supreme court to grant a writ of error. The court also denied a petition for a writ of error addressed to the full bench.

This appears to exhaust all possibilities of action by defense counsel in the Massachusetts courts. Arthur D. Hill, chief defense counsel, several of his

CHAPLINS PREPARE FOR COURT BATTLE

Reports of Property Settlement Not Substantiated by Either Party

Los Angeles, Calif.—(AP)—Gathering of ammunition in preparation for the court battle on the divorce action of Lita Grey Chaplin, against Charlie Chaplin Friday engrossed the legal armies of attorneys, secretaries and auditors representing the comedian and his young wife.

In both camps Thursday either silence or denials greeted the persistent and repeatedly published reports made and the trial, scheduled for Monday, would not, upon the sentational charges of Mrs. Chaplin's original complaint but upon routine accusations of cruelty.

Published reports Thursday, upon which attorneys were noncommittal, were to the effect that Mrs. Chaplin would be paid $50,000 or slightly more in five year payments as a result of a property agreement being negotiated. The actor in the reported settlement plan would retain the right to see his two small sons at any time, although he would give Mrs. Chaplin custody of them.

Failure of the prison alarm system gave Jaworski, Vassibinder, and their accomplice a narrow margin of time in which to escape. A prison attendant pressed a button but no alarm sounded. Before a telephone operator noticed them in their flight and phoned city police, the three were on their way to freedom. The entire affair took barely ten minutes.

A guard opened the jail office door
at his keys, opened fire, then passed automatics to the two convicts and fired them. They leaped into a waiting car, in which some witnesses said
a woman was waiting, and were gone.

Murderer Boasted He'd Dodge Death And Does It

Pittsburg, Pa.—(AP)—A convicted murderer, who boasted his sentence of death would never be carried out, a fellow convict, and their liberator Friday frustrated all efforts of western Pennsylvania officials to find them
after shooting their way from jail here Thursday. Armed officers continued to cruise all arterial highways and watch telephone lines and even firing fields in their search.

The three are Paul Jaworski, Detroit gangster, convicted murderer and self confessed member of the "flathead gang" which blew up a paymaster's armored car at Coveville March 11, and got away with $104,000; Jack Vassibinder, gunman who killed a man who refused to give him a quarter,
and a young well-dressed but unknown liberator.

Only an incoherent letter, believed coded, revolving about the word
"blue," which came to Jaworski from his wife in Detroit, and the fact that the car in which the escape was made was stolen in Flint, Mich., remained Friday to give clues as to the perpetrator of the plot.

Fail To Find Trace Of Lone Explorer In Cave

Shelburne, Tenn.—(AP)—A granite walled cave, once the stronghold of freedom, housed with its uncharted regions Friday the answer to the fate of Lawrence S. Ashley, geologist and underground explorer, who disappeared within its deep recesses Monday morning.

Nick-a-Jack cave, 30 miles west of Chattanooga, held fast the one man that possibly had lured its wonders out of its murky entrance, after a hired man, ever fascinated by its maw, held the cavern in higher regard than a mammoth cave.

of weary seekers staggered exhausted

MISS DORAN SUNK, BELIEF
School Teacher's Airship in Poor Condition to Battle
Pacific Waters

BULLETIN
Washington, D. C.—(AP)—Two submarines have been ordered from the island of Hawaii to investigate reports of a "lost" plane in the water on the route of the Dole Hawaiian flight in which two planes are missing, Rear Admiral McLean, commander of the submarine division, reported Friday to the navy department.

Admiral McLean's message said the submarines S-15 and S-16 had departed for San Francisco to search for the missing Golden Eagle and Miss Doran planes and that while enroute, would investigate reports of "an object" having been seen in the water.

BULLETIN
San Francisco—(AP)—The erroneous report that the Dole flight plane Miss Doran had been found a few miles off Kaneohe on the island of Maui, followed a day of rumors of sighting of planes and ships resembling planes that had caused joy to spring in the hearts of the friends of the plane's crew here. Each succeeding rumor proved unfounded. The Honolulu correspondent of the Associated Press told of the rumor but cast doubt on their authenticity.

San Francisco, Calif.—(AP)—The Pacific ocean Friday was the scene of a renewed search for a brown-eyed girl of 22 and four men, missing from the aerial derby to Honolulu, who may still be aloft upon its limitless leagues.

Mildred Doran, petty school teacher of Flint, Mich., 28-year pilot and navigator, John A. Pender, and Vilas R. Knapp, Stevens Point, Wis., had been down approximately 48 hours, according to the most hopeful estimates of the cruise, radiating of the biplane in which they set out Tuesday noon in the Dole $35,000 flight from Oakland to Honolulu.

The time limit set by the builder of the plane on its ability to withstand the buffeting of the seas was only 24 hours. The plight of John W. Frost and Gordon Scott, fliers of George Heart's, cigar-shaped monoplane, Golden Eagle, the other lost entrant in the air race was still unknown Friday.

San Francisco—(AP)—The jinx which preceded the take off in the $35,000 prize Dole flight continued in its wake Friday, but into the far-reaching expanse of the Pacific went the appealing call of the radio, aided by searching airplanes, destroyers and submarines in quest of two lost airplanes, destroyers and submarines in quest of —the Miss Doran and the Golden Eagle.

James Dole, the Hawaiian millionaire who put up the prize for the race, offered $20,000 for the recovery of the missing planes and their occupants. William Malloska, Michigan millionaire, who entered the Miss Doran in the race, offered $10,000 for the recovery of the occupants of the

CITY FINISHES BRIDGE PAINTING FOR THIS YEAR

Painting of bridges for this year has been completed. F. F. Hackworth, street commissioner, announced Thursday when the Oneida-st bridge crossing the river was finished. The painters were sent to the voting booths in an effort to improve their appearance.

Practically all of the bridges were painted this year or last year. The Oneida-st bridge was started last year but the frost came before the lower sections were finished.

HUGE SYSTEM SET BY U. S. TO CARE FOR SICK VETERANS

Veterans' Bureau Manager Tells Legionnaires What Is Being Done for Them

Marquette—(AP)—Profiting from past experience the United States government has built up the most liberal and complete veterans relief system in operation in the world, declared H. W. Longfellow, regional manager of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau, speaking before the state American Legion convention here.

"During the past year, a total of 16,044 medical examinations were conducted by the Milwaukee office of the Veterans' Bureau," said the speaker. "1,166 veterans have been hospitalized, 392 of whom were hospitalized for disabilities not connected with the military service. The regulations provide, however, that travel expense to the hospital cannot be authorized unless the hospitalization and travel has previously been authorized by the Veterans' Bureau."

"The hospital lead during the past year throughout the entire service has varied between 25,400 in October, 1926 to 27,600 in February, 1927. The percentage of psychotic patients increased from 43 per cent to 46 per cent, while the tuberculosis patients showed a net decrease from 37 to 27 per cent. The percentage of patients in contract hospitals is being decreased as a result of the consistent policy being pursued of transferring all of the Bureau beneficiaries, whose conditions permit, from contract hospitals into the Bureau's own hospitals whenever beds become available."

"Facilities providing for the treatment of cases wherein hospitalization is not justified are provided in the Milwaukee Regional office, and during

LITTLE CHUTE MAN FINED FOR LEAPING ARTERIAL

Felix Meulenman Little Chute, paid a fine of $1 and costs of $2.20 when he was arraigned in municipal court Friday morning for failure to stop at an arterial highway. Mr. Meulenman was arrested Thursday morning by Officer Hersekorn on Drew-st when he failed to stop his automobile before crossing North-st.

the past year 15,756 treatments have been administered.

COSTS MILLIONS

"There are now a total of 243,209 disability compensation awards running of which monthly disbursements approximating $12,800,000 are being made. Of this number 4,719 come within the jurisdiction of Wisconsin with total disbursements approximating $228,220 monthly. Four hundred fifty-five applications have been received in the Milwaukee Regional office during the fiscal year, 1927. During the past two years, the average monthly value of awards throughout the service has increased $6.12 per case. This increase can be largely attributed to the effects of the new rating schedule."

"The vocational education program has practically been terminated, and in the Wisconsin region there are only five veterans still in training, all of whom will have completed their training by June 30, 1928, and in no event may any veteran be continued in training after June 30, 1928, as the law prescribes that this shall be the closing date."

"It is the intention of Congress, the Director of the U. S. Veterans' Bureau and all officials and employees charged with the responsibility of administering the law to grant every benefit and extend all relief possible in every case subject to the legal requirements. It now costs about $1,000,000 each day to carry on this work. This is a tremendous task, and as Legionnaires you should remember that practically all phases of the law as it now stands were sponsored and backed by the American Legion and kindred organizations."

"LABEL" CITIES FOR BENEFIT OF FLIERS

Madison—(P)—Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, in a letter to Governor Fred D. Zimmerman today suggested that the governor urge Wisconsin cities to "label" their towns for the benefit of air pilots.

"It has been brought to my attention," Mr. Hoover wrote, "that painting of the city's name on the highest buildings of the respective towns in the State of Wisconsin would be a distinct advantage and of great assistance to both the military and commercial air pilots."

"May I urge that you bring the matter to the attention of the individual Chambers of Commerce in your state, each chamber, in turn, to take it up with the business organizations in that community."

"The distribution of literature which has been the subject will be made direct to the local Chambers of Commerce from my office."

"Your aid in this connection will do much to advance the interest of your state as well as of the nation."

THIS HAS HAPPENED
Attempts have been made on the life of ELISE MARBERRY, an American girl owning considerable property near the little town of PORTO VERDE, in west central Brazil. She has escaped harm due to the shrewdness of her cousin and protector, VILAK, who with his friend LINCOLN NUNNALLY, an elderly American chemist, is trying to learn the reason for the strange enmity for Elise.

Living near Porto Verde is one GAYLORD PRENTISS, a strange and forbidding character, who has evinced a hatred for Elise.

TINKY, Elise's two-year-old orphaned nephew, is kidnapped. A native reports Prentiss has been seen with the baby. The trail leads into the jungle. Calamity overtakes the expedition. Vilak organizes in pursuit. Native trackers are injured or desert. Treachery breaks out.

Elise, Vilak and Nunnally finally emerge from the jungle. Presently they come to the outskirts of a strange city, resembling the old Inca civilization. Here they are made prisoners. They discover they are in the power of CARLOS D'ALBENTARA, whom they know as an engineer back in Porto Verde.

The ruler of the city decides to marry Elise and to put Vilak and Nunnally to death. They are to be tortured at the feast of Rayni, as are Elise's nephew and Prentiss. A friendly Indian slips a dagger to Vilak, who liberates himself and Nunnally. Then when the natives press around him, Vilak boasts that he can walk through fire unharmed to prove himself a god.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLV

Vilak tossed bits of wood and leaves upon the fiery rectangle. Then clasp- ing a clay vessel containing the blood of a sacrificed deer in one hand and a spear in the other, he moved up and down the fire's entire length, with the end of his spear sprinkling a few drops of the contents over the flames, or prodding the red embers with the point, constantly droning an incantation. At last he ceased. He removed his boots, his woolen socks, rolled his breeches far above his knees and took a post at the end of the fire nearest the temple.

"Behold, O people Behold, O priests Behold, O Batalagos," he thundered. "And when you have beheld kneel and worship. For the gods of the fire are angry. The son of the fire walks through the fire. Behold, O people Behold, O priests. Behold, O Batalagos."

As he spoke the last words, he moved. Another step followed, then another. An awed silence gripped the watchers; he was in the flame. Breathless, they saw him stride, slowly, solemnly, over the fiery path as marches a mourner at a funeral procession. Dumbly, like frightened beasts, they saw him reach the other end and walk eagerly into the stones under the scowling idol. With a single impulse, people, priests, chief, dropped to the ground and hid their faces.

Quietly Vilak made his way to the altar and lifted the child from the stone. It recognized him; began gurgling in delight. He strode over with it to Elise. She darted forward, clasped the child to her breast ecstatically and overwhelmed it with kisses, stopping for an instant tearfully to kiss Vilak. He smiled gently, then returned to the altar. With a few blows of a knife taken from a soldier, he cut the thongs binding Prentiss.

Slowly the savages began to rise, with the help of two of his aides. Batalagos stood erect, and waddling forward, prostrated himself once more and touched his head to Vilak's foot. Vilak murmured a few friendly words. He wheeled quickly as he saw D'Albentara, who had darted into the chief's apartments when Vilak emerged from the fire, leap from behind one of the altar stones (twenty feet away). In his hand was a revolver. There was a shot. Vilak dodged behind a stone, at the same time snatching a spear from one of the soldiers.

The shot missed; the bullet only chipped out a tiny fragment of rock. Vilak raised the spear high over his head, hurled it. It struck the other's arm, just as he was about to fire a second time. The pistol flamed, but the bullet went wildly into the sky, the weapon dropping to the ground an instant later.

The Portuguese clutched at his bleeding, broken arm, then stooped to seize the pistol again. Before he could recover it, Vilak had made him a prisoner. Swiftly, securely, the chiefs soldiers bound him with thongs; expertly bandaged his arm so that he would not bleed to death.

Elise, the old man, and Prentiss had all come running to aid at the sound of the shot; the three friends entered the chief's ruined palace to search D'Albentara's quarters for the pistols he had taken from them on their capture. Prentiss, after some hesitation as though his presence were not wanted, joined them.

"I won't be happy until we've got those pistols back," Vilak muttered. "They're not good things to leave around here. Mean too much. After they're in our holsters again, I think we can feel safe."

After some searching, the weapons were found. The four were on the way out again, when a low wolfish roar arose from the court. Vilak broke into a run. He reached the open. On the altar lay the outstretched form of D'Albentara. Beside him was a white-painted priest holding a knife.

On the ground below, the priest whose needles and paint-jars proclaimed him the sacred tattooer, was slowly moving away. Vilak shouted. But even as he did so the arm of the idol descended and the three thorns which formed the fingers of its hand met the three triangles on the victim's forehead.

By a word to Batalagos, Vilak spared the stricken Portuguese the fearful tortures which had marked the death of the condemned murderer. A blow of the knife speedily ended his agony. But though Vilak wished it, he did not deem it wise to prevent the other grim finalities.

The thronged court soon cleared once more. Batalagos waddled to Vilak and set a bowl of starchy food before him. Blacks brought other bowls. The Americans ate. After the meal, Vilak spoke quietly to Prentiss, who was sitting off to himself, still with the hesitant, apologetic air of one who feels that his presence is obnoxious. Prentiss rose. The two walked off to the town. They returned. An hour or two later, Vilak was joined by Batalagos and with him entered the chief's palace. When they emerged it was almost sunset.

A second meal was brought to the travelers; the ceremonial dances recommenced in the court.

They sat near the fire in its circle of stones and watched. Prentiss became drowsy. He moved off a short distance, stretched out, and was quickly deep in an exhausted sleep.

There was an interval of quiet in the ceremonies and the three friends lit cigarettes. They smoked lazily, luxuriously. The old man patted the foot of the baby, who with the elasticity of childhood had already completely forgotten his recent woes and was cooing happily at Elise's side, then glanced at the long trench near them, now black and covered with light ashes which occasionally drifted to them in the evening wind.

He shook his head in bewilderment. "You did it . . . er . . . Vilak, it's impossible. But you . . . er . . . yes . . . er . . . yes . . . did it. How?"

With his cigarette Vilak indicated the trench. "You mean that?"

"Er . . . yes." Vilak took a long puff. "Told you it was a trick. And an extraordinarily simple one. Just requires a little recognition of the laws of heat conductivity which you as a veteran scientist, mon cher, knew long before I was born and which the not so stupid shamans of the Asiatle Islands have known for centuries."

He picked up a piece of the red lava rock near him. "Look at that. See how light and porous it is. You can easily perceive from its structure how the tiny air-spaces in it tend to make it immediately let go any heat, it has and make it a wretched conductor so that it might be red hot on the bottom and at the same time be quite cool on top. Same principle as that physics experiment every high school youngster knows where the same water in a six-inch test tube is so cold at one end that it's frozen, and so hot at the other that it's turning into steam. Simply because water, like this lava, is a miserable heat conductor."

He paused to take a slow puff and let the smoke drift from his nostrils. "You'll notice that where ever fire-walking is practiced it's in regions where porous rock is either abundant or can be brought in from some neighboring section. It can't be done with the solid rocks like granite."

"This morning when I was going through that hocus-pocus of sprinkling blood over the fire and prodding the stones with the bloody spear—which was merely a sort of camouflage used by every shaman and every American sleight-of-hand performer for that matter—I was really of position were cooling quicker than the others and moving them about a bit so that they'd cool still more quickly. I kept up my hocus-pocus until there were enough so that I had a path all the way, and then simply walked across."

"Even had anyone suspected, which I was quite sure they wouldn't, the bits of branches and leaves I threw along the sides where the flames wouldn't touch me gave an appearance to terrific heat throughout which would have deceived the most expert. I scorched my feet a trifle in one or two places which I hadn't calculated perfectly, but that's the extent of my injuries."

They sat in silence again. The child began tugging at the strap of one of Elise's purses. She caressed it, then glanced toward Prentiss, sleeping gamely a few yards away. "What about . . . him?" she said, quietly.

Vilak flicked the ash from his cigarette. "Do all right in a few days."

Had a long talk with him this afternoon, and got his whole story. Not nearly such a bad fellow as you thought him."

Her delicately molded face grew puzzled. "How did he happen to be here? Why was Tinky here with him? Why did all these dreadful things happen?"

Vilak touched his watch-fob. "That my cherished cousin, Gold. Money. The famous or infamous root of all evil. In this case there were two quite separate and distinct efforts to get wealth, which in the end came to one. One didn't concern you in the end, but did in the beginning. The other didn't concern you in the beginning, but did most emphatically before it was concluded."

"You're talking riddles. I don't know what you mean."

In the next chapter Vilak unfolds the amazing story of Prentiss.

SORE ITCHING RASH FOLLOWED BERRY-PICKING

Spread rapidly, but was checked at last and quickly healed

Carrolltown, Pa., Aug. 19.—"One day last year, after picking berries my hand began to itch very badly. I scratched it but did not bother to put anything on it. Finally the place became red and sore and began to spread all over my hand. Then I became alarmed and seeing your advertisement I sent for a sample each of your Resinol Soap and Ointment. After using these samples the relief was so great, I purchased two full size cakes of Resinol Soap and two jars of Ointment and continued their use until my hand was finally healed. I can never thank you enough for what your Resinol has done for me, and I hope that all who have skin trouble will try these products." (Signed) Agnes Frederick, Box 17.

The Brand Is Your Insurance

There is an overproduction of crude oil. This has encouraged the opening of numerous small refineries. Many of these are operated by men unskilled in this work. The consequence is that in gasolines there is a wide variance in quality and performance.

Red Crown Ethyl is a new gasoline built upon an old, established brand. Red Crown Gasoline is the peer of any motor fuel made from pure petroleum. By adding Ethyl anti-knock compound to this splendid fuel, Red Crown Ethyl is produced.

Red Crown Ethyl does away with that annoying knock—the engine delivers a steady, smooth, flexible flow of power—it gives the car a snappy start, a quick pick-up, and enables it to attain any speed the machine is capable of developing.

It has made the high-compression engine possible—and it makes your engine perform better.

Take no chances with your car—fuel it with Red Crown Ethyl. The brand is your protection.

Remember carbon in your cylinders decreases the space in the firing chamber, and of course increases the compression. But to hold this compression, thus enabling the carbon to work for you, be sure that your valves are clean and are seated properly—then Red Crown Ethyl will sing you a song that will delight.

IS BIG BUSINESS BETTER?

The Van Sweringens have asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for approval of their proposed merger of the Erie and Pere Marquette railroads into the Chesapeake and Ohio. In October, hearings will be held in Milwaukee on the proposed merger of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Spokane. Portland and Seattle under the Hill interests, which now control the Burlington system.

Even before these two great merger applications, there have been the Lorce application for a merger of southwestern roads, the New York Central application to lease the Michigan Central and the Big Four systems, the Lorce application to lease roads that would create a fifth trunk line in the East.

Industrially, there is rumor of a merger of interests between the du Pont, United States Steel and General Motors interests. The Fisher Body corporation, a subsidiary of General Motors, is buying into Baldwin Locomotive. There are reports that Baldwin Locomotive is seeking control of Lima Locomotive.

The so-called "chain store" movement has swept the country. The chain idea has also spread to the amusement field, and moving picture producers, moving picture distributors, vaudeville circuits, and theatre owners are now merging into several big strings which may in time dominate entertainment.

All these consolidations—proposed, rejected and completed—show in an unmistakable manner that business is feeling its way towards the elimination of wastefulness through costly competition. With prosperity at a high level, public fear of the trust and the giant corporation—fear that resulted in the old dissolution of the Standard Oil and the International Harvester combines—is beginning to fade.

Is that banished fear justified? The I. C. C. refused several of the railroad merger proposals on the ground that they were not compatible with public interest. The Federal Trade commission has taken a look into the theater and movie combines, and will investigate the steel-motors-du Pont alliance. The main question to be determined is whether or not the super-big business can behave. It may be organized now with the best of intentions, but, drunk with the power of monopoly, it may fall from grace.

Corporations, like governments, are human. No organization can be better than the human beings who direct it. As the super-human seems a somewhat remote possibility, it is only sound precaution to go slowly before creating any combinations that shall be more powerful than the forces at hand to keep them in the paths of righteousness.

SOFT JUSTICE GETS IT AGAIN

Banks lose 150 millions every year through the embezzlement of dishonest employees, and one reason given for this amazing theft is that "extravagant habits ushered in by increased salaries have played their part in pulling many a banker from his perch of trust." So, any rate, declared Banker Frierson of Chattanooga, who spoke before the American Institute of Banking convention the other day.

This is an interesting observation. The usual belief was that the poor bank employee was the one who fell into the snares of temptation and took the bank's money to pay off a mortgage on the old home. That embezzled wealth goes for high living puts the matter in a different light, and it would indicate that the poor and underpaid banker was most apt to be honest.

The real reason for the increase in banks' losses through absconding employes is the leniency of the courts, as Banker Frierson pointed out.

Murder is not the only crime that the criminally-minded can get away with today, and the plea for harder-boiled justice cannot be made too often.

Kindly, sympathetic, forgiving jurists are as much to blame for the crime wave as movies, or jazz, or the automobile, or any other of the stock causes paraded by the soft-hearted and soft-headed reformers.

DEFAULTED BONDS

Forty-six towns in the state of Washington have defaulted on their public improvement bonds. The bonds were issued with the property to be improved as security. Property owners allowed their land to revert to public ownership for failure to pay taxes, thus destroying the bondholders' lien; and then bought it back at a farce of a public auction for a fraction of the value of the bonds. Sometimes the price was as low as five dollars. By this procedure millions of dollars' worth of bonds were invalidated, and residents got miles of paved streets, sewers and walks for nothing.

Governor Hartley of Washington has just vetoed the last hope of relief which the bondholders possessed, a series of legislative measures permitting honest towns to remedy the defaults and restore their credit. His excuse is that the business rule is "let the buyer beware" and that "speculators" who bought these Washington bonds should have known that the purchase was at their own risk.

Suppose it was. One of the factors which makes it possible to sell public improvement bonds at a premium is the confidence of investors in a public sense of honor, the feeling that such loans made in good faith and used for constructive purposes are sure of repayment because of the conscience and decency of average communities. Respectable business has long abandoned shyster, "caveat emptor," methods; states have set up to protect investors by blue sky laws; and this sight of the great state of Washington ignoring the discomfiture of those who intrusted their funds to its people in good faith is almost incomprehensible.

In the long run, won't Washington pay more in destruction of investor confidence and resultant higher bond interest than some of its people have gained by trickery?

DOES LEISURE MAKE CULTURE?

The shorter working day with its opportunities for "culture" has been and will continue to be balmyhood.

All the champions of the 3 or 4 or 6-hour working day seem to take it for granted that more leisure will mean that the workingman will pick up culture much as he might pick cherries or daisies.

Aldous Huxley shows another side of too much leisure in a keenly penetrating article called "The Outlook for American Culture."

His contention is that the very machinery and wholesale production which makes leisure possible also produces "canned leisure" in the way of the movie, radio, amusement park, one mechanical thrill after another, so that "culture" has as little chance to exist as in the regime of the 8 or 10-hour working day.

He writes as follows: "Leisure makes culture possible, but does not automatically create it. Machinery has brought leisure to America, and that leisure will certainly tend to increase. But can we honestly say that this leisure has given birth to a corresponding culture, or that there are any clear signs that culture is destined to spread in the immediate future? We cannot. Leisure makes culture possible; but this possible culture has not in fact become actual.

"Let me advise anyone who believes in the near approach of the social millennium to go to any great American or European city and note what the majority of men and women do with their newfound prosperity and leisure."

SKEETER TIME IN THE BACKWOODS

This is skeeter season in the backwoods—the intellectual backwoods, the boundaries of which frequently coincide with the outlines of select residential sections of our best cities. Mosquito culture seems to be a hobby of a great many urban and suburban residents.

Many people, even those who suffer most from the mosquito nuisance, still imagine the unpleasant insects breed in tall grass or under rank weeds or bushes or in other shady spots. This is an instance of the resistance of ordinary folk to scientific knowledge. The scientific authorities have been laboring for a generation to drum into the head of the man in the street the essentials of mosquito breeding, and the poor sap just goes on scratching and complaining and breeding them by the thousands in his own obstructed cave trough or his own little fountain or pond. He likes to grumble about the way the municipal authorities permit the grass to grow or the weeds to thrive in this or that vacant lot, whereas in truth these neglected spots are mere hiding places or rest resorts for the mosquitoes that are born and bred in the old pump can that stands half filled with water out behind the grumbler's garage.

People who find themselves tormented by mosquitoes should conduct a systematic and thoughtful survey of the premises for a radius of 200 feet from the scene of battle, and drain, empty, screen or oil every reservoir of standing water, big or little, that may be accessible to Mrs. Mosquito en route. Mrs. Mosquito the scientist tells us, gets that way every 10 days or two weeks, and if you will only provide an old tomato can or pon bottle partly filled with water, any kind of water only so it wet, she will present you with a thousand or so lusty young ones in the two week limit, the young ones existing for the first few days of their lives as wigglers in the water. If there is no standing or stagnant water for them to do their wiggle act, they just can't grow up and become full fledged pests. So it is up to every householder to make his premises attractive or not to the breeding instinct of the mosquitoes, as he sees fit.

All this is poor consolation for the unhappy victim who is just about eaten up by the mosquitoes. We cannot forbear to remind the victim that it is Mrs. Mosquito that does all of the execution—the female of the species true to character—blood-thirsty, something in human or animal blood providing an essential in the development and growth of the mosquito's young. Mr. Mosquito, merely if ever sheds any blood—he just buzzes around, yet richly merits violent death for his buzzing, for one can never tell from the buzz whether the creature bites.

Equal parts of olive oil, oil of tar, oil of cedar and oil of citronella, though gooey, will repel mosquitoes, if a cloth be saturated with it and hung in the doorway of tent or cottage. It may be rubbed over the skin when one must go into mosquito infested.

The itching or irritation of mosquito bites may be relieved by touching with tincture of iodine, or peroxide, or glycerin, or by rubbing with wet soap, or by bathing with a handful of saleratus (soda) in water or a tablespoonful of ammonia in a pint of water, or by smearing over with zinc oxide-boric ointment.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Up Late

Is it all right for a person with early pulmonary tuberculosis to be confined to bed, to stay up as long as he retires early? (L. A.)

Answer—You mean to remain awake. I suppose. I can only say that as a general rule it doesn't matter what portion of the 24 hours the patient devotes to sleep, so long as he gets the required amount of sleep. But only the patient's own physician can intelligently advise whether the occupation of the waking hours is harmless to the patient.

How to Prepare Coffee

Please tell me how to prepare coffee without boiling or dripping. I am starting a chain of sandwich shops and this may come within our policy to serve only the most wholesome food. (C. H. H.)

Answer—Grind your own coffee when you are ready to make it. Put the finely ground coffee in the pot. Add cold water. Add sufficient quantity of egg white. Stir up and let stand half an hour or more if possible. Put on the fire when about time to serve the coffee. Watch the coffee and snatch from fire just before she boils. Put cream and sugar in cup first. Then pour in coffee. Customers will call you blessed.

LIBRARY ADVENTURES

By Arnold Mulder

AN ARBITRARY RULE ABOUT TITLES

In a magazine article recently Thomas L. Masson, for many years editor of "Life," made a statement that ought to take a prize as a foolish assertion. All other things being equal, he claimed, a title of a novel or story or article, or any piece of writing that makes a bid for popularity ought to be arranged alphabetically. That is, as there are two words in the title, as in "Elmer Gantry," or "Main Street," the initial letter of the first word ought to come earlier in the alphabet than the first letter of the second. So also, when there are more than two words—the initial letters of the words ought to go down the scale of the alphabet.

Where he dug up this arbitrary rule no one can venture to guess. It is so ridiculous that it is hard to take it seriously as something set forth by a perfectly reasonable paper and considered worthy of being printed in a magazine. He admits that there are so many titles I am willing to undertake to produce a world famous book that violates this arbitrary rule for every one equally famous that Masson can produce that follows it. Just at random, as they pop into my head, here are a few examples of titles that do not follow the rule: "The Scarlet Letter," "Huckleberry Finn," "Tom Sawyer," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Jane Eyre," "Vanity Fair," "David Copperfield," "The Return of the Native," "Snow Bound," "Morte d'Arthur," "Paradise Lost," "The Divine Comedy," "Robinson Crusoe," "Tom Jones," "Tristram Shandy," "The Sentimental Journey," "Romeo and Juliet," "Quentin Durward," "Silas Marner," "Henry Esmond," "Sartor Resartus."

It would be possible to give several hundred more that violated the Masson rule. Similarly it would be possible to pick out several hundred titles of equally famous books that follow the rule. Thus you could place "Adam Bede" by the side of "Silas Marner," and "Antony and Cleopatra" by the side of "Romeo and Juliet." It is likely that no successful writer ever lived who could not be full writer even if the question of initial letters of the title were considered. I doubt if anybody except Masson ever thought of such a thing in choosing a title for a book.

Masson's further statement is unassailable—that the title is often as great an element in the success of a book as the contents of the volume.

He asserts that as an editor for 40 years he has frequently accepted an article because of an appealing title and has sometimes rejected one because the title was poor. He says many editors are greatly influenced by titles and they are an important element in their decision on manuscripts.

Rightly so. A good title is to a book what a well-trimmed show-window is to a store. When the author is unknown the title is usually the only point of contact between himself and the prospective readers. If it is attractive the book has a better chance to win recognition. It is also well known that titles are frequently changed after a manuscript has been accepted for publication. Sometimes the author hits on something better than he had first decided upon, sometimes a publisher or his office force suggest a better title. Most writers are glad to accept suggestions of that kind. Getting a title that is exactly right is extremely difficult. In very many cases a writer takes one that is second best, simply because he cannot find one that is ideal.

Here is one compensation. If the book is good and takes hold on the mind of the public, even a poor title after a time becomes a good one; it takes on the glow that inheres in the book. If a brand new writer were to come out today with a brand new book and used the title for the first time, "The Scarlet Letter," I should consider it a poor one. So also with "Uncle Tom's Cabin," which is almost trivial. Time has cast a glow around both and they have become good titles.

But the young writer who spends no sleepless nights over the choice of a title for his book is neglecting a very important part of his job.

DAILY HINTS FOR HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

In a volume issued under the auspices of the American Institute of Economics, established by the Carnegie corporation, Robert Morse Woodbury considers some of the important factors with relation to accidents among workmen as well as to the matter of workers' health.

The total working time lost annually on account of occupational accidents is estimated at 247,000,000 working days. The annual total wage loss from such accidents, assuming an average wage of $4 per day, is estimated roughly at $988,000,000. The time lost and wages lost because of ill health among 20,000,000 industrial workers is approximately 210,000,000 working days or the equivalent of 700,000 working years. Assuming wages to average $4 per day, the wage loss from sickness causing absence from work is estimated at $840,000,000. At an average of $1 a day for medical hospital and nursing expenses, the amount spent per year for this purpose is about $245,000,000. The total economic loss from sickness and premature death among wage earners is estimated at $1,500,000,000 annually.

These figures are significant because of their tremendous total, and because most of the vast amount of industrial accidents and industrial sickness is preventable. Physicians associated with industrial plants point out that much of the sickness could be eliminated by adequate health supervision combined with prompt alleviation of such as are found on physical examination.

The statistical data are important because of their emphasis on the nature of the problem. For instance, the selection of methods of prevention of any industrial accidents involves consideration of its effectiveness, its cost and its relationship to the output of work. Only compilation of statistics of accidents before and after any given system is in operation permits safe decision as to the value of various methods.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York—A friend has figured out that an average hat costs a New Yorker anywhere from $50 to $100.

An ordinary straw Kelly, which can be picked up in Sixth Avenue for a few dollars, is likely to cost at least twenty before it is thrown in the ash heap at the end of summer.

Which, hayhap, may account for the hatless army, rapidly growing in this city.

How come, you ask? It's the hat checking racket that operates everywhere. Almost every place, outside the arm chair counters, now boasts a hat-checking concession. You go to lunch and check your hat and a dime is extracted. This is repeated at dinner. If you visit a club or a theater, there stands the hat-check bandit. At a night club the minimum is around two bits and, in an exclusive club, you are supposed to leave at least fifteen cents. The business man who goes about a lot can expect the cost of his hat to run around 50 cents a day or $15 a month. If the hat lasts six months it has cost him $90 above the original price.

Anyway, the other day my friend decided that it would be cheaper to have his hat stolen. The law of percentages has it that he will lose, and has not more than once a month. Discounting the hat check tips, that would break him even on a $3 straw beanie and he could appear with a new one.

This is a mere item, however, as compared with trying to have a pet dog or a baby in this metropolis. A busy man must hire the janitor or one of the professional "dog exercisers" if he is to have a pup in his basement. Janitors make considerable money playing nursemaid to tenants' dogs, and innumerable jobless men take on the risk while looking around for work.

Since few apartments are large enough to accommodate baby buggies and families at the same time, and since most apartment owners refuse to allow the buggies to be parked in the hallway, the "baby buggy" garages flourish. In one neighborhood of the Bronx a garage owner recently cleared autos out of the "place, finding he could get a much better turnover out of go-carts and carriages without having any dirty work to do. Rental is arranged by day, week or month.

In 49th Street a "beauty parlor" for dogs and cats is the latest. While milady goes to the beauty parlor for her bob, permanent wave, or face lifting, she can leave Tabby and Fido at the animal beauty shop to be clipped, trimmed and primed.

The dogs of Park Avenue, quite the ritziest hounds to be found anywhere, are perfect specimens of the beauty parlor's art. In summer days they are barked beyond belief, their masters demanding those same ultra-cuts that mark the new styles in bobbed hair.

FEWER COLLISIONS WITH STREET CARS

Transportation Men Say Autoists Have More Respect for Trolley Cars

Milwaukee—(P)—Motorists are beginning to realize that street cars can't dodge, that they can't be knocked over and that therefore it pays to be more careful on trolley lines were the deductions presented at the convention of the Transportation Section of the Wisconsin Utilities association here by R. M. Howard, vice president of the Mississippi Valley Public Service corporation.

The speaker said that the safety work which is being carried on is showing results. This was proved by the fact that the increase in automobile registrations from 1918 to 1926 was 3 1-2 times whereas collisions between trolleys and automobiles have increased 2 1-2 times.

"Collisions with motor cars constitute the greatest number of accidents which trolley companies experience," said Mr. Howard. "In fully 90 per cent of the street car and auto collisions accidents which occur, it is the auto which runs into the trolley." A large part of the auto-trolley accidents are due to backing in and out of parking places. Limited parking periods on highways used by trolleys is more of an accident menace than all day parking. More cars can be parked in a block if parking is limited to an hour, but at the same time more cars move in and out of the parking spaces, obstructing traffic and creating accident hazards. Safety work to prevent accidents has not kept up with the rapid increase in auto registrations.

UTOS INCREASE COSTS

Speaking at the same meeting W. H. Sawyer, East St. Louis, president of the American Electric Railway association, pointed out that the private automobile is increasing the cost of public transportation and the general introduction of one-man cars was the only good way in which to offset the factors of increasing costs.

The private automobile, said the speaker, is taking away the non-rush period riders and is creating present traffic congestion with its attendant parking evil which slows up the speed of cars. "While non-rush-hour riding has been decreased, rush period has been increased. Consequently, the cost has to be based more and more on the cost of providing peak period service which is the most expensive part of providing transportation."

"One of the best means of offsetting these factors of increasing costs and still improving service is the general introduction of one-man cars. In many cities where one-man cars are substituted, more seats per rider are provided and more cars than formerly are placed in service, resulting in better and even safer transportation than was previously furnished. The service is to be maintained and improved depends upon the public's attitude and its willingness to pay a fare adequate to meet the increasing costs of improved service."

STAGE AND SCREEN

"LAST OUTLAW"

Every kid in Appleton should love "The Last Outlaw" by Gary Cooper, Paramount starring picture, showing Saturday only at the Fischer theatre. And what's more, every father will want to take every kid to see it. And every mother ought to go along, not to mention any daughters there might be in the family. Why? "The Last Outlaw" is said to be the kind of picture the whole family will enjoy.

But the kids, especially, should get the biggest kick out of it. In the first place, there's the hero, Gary Cooper, whom Paramount raised to stardom in his last picture "Arizona Bound." He's the kind of a person that will win the hero-worship of every boy who sees him. Tall, lithe and rangy, he has but to flash his quick smile in a close-up, and he's made a new audience of friends. That goes for women as well as boys.

And then there's Billy Butts, that machoous, seven-year-old trouper whose a better actor than many players four times his age. Billy enacts a homeless little bum in "The Last Outlaw" who is picked up by Cooper and made into a full-fledged cowboy with his hat, chaps, pony and everything. Billy has a lot to do, and he even rides Cooper's magnificent horse, Flash.

The whole cast was carefully chosen. Betty Jewel is said to make a more than capable leading woman while Herbert Prior and Jim Corey are as evil a pair of villains as one could

Shaving The Neck Won't Cause Weak Eyes; Haskin

Continual shaving the back of the neck does not have a tendency to weaken the eyes, Frederick J. Haskin, director of the Appleton Post-Crescent Information Bureau said to a Post-Crescent reader who put that question up to him.

How to remove the stump of a tree which has been cut down without running the surrounding lawn, was another query. Mr. Haskin recommended boring a two inch hole eight inches deep in the center of the stump. The work is best done in the spring, he said. Fill this hole within two inches of the top with saltpeter, cover with a light sprinkling of dirt, then fill the balance with water. The next summer dig out the hole and fill with kerosene, set fire to the oil and the stump will burn out even to the roots several feet under ground.

What caused the destruction of the wild pigeons that were so numerous during the early 1800's, a Post-Crescent reader asked the bureau. The answer was: "Vast numbers of wild pigeons were seen in this country prior to 1855, though not in such great numbers as earlier in the century, namely 1800-1850. The slaughter of these pigeons raged for years with nets, traps, and guns, and by 1884 there were very few of the wild pigeons seen in this country. By 1900 they had dwindled down to a few specimens left in captivity in Milwaukee and in the Cincinnati zoo. Martha, the last known wild pigeon died at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of August 29, 1914, at the age of 23. According to all ornithological data available she was the last of her tribe in the world. Martha's mate died in 1910, and though a price of $1,000 was offered for a mate, none was ever found."

Tar may be removed from an automobile with a soft cloth moistened with benzol or carbon tetrachloride, rubbing lightly, according to a recommendation made by the Bureau of Standards of the United States government. Mr. Haskin told a questioner. Eucalyptus oil also will remove tar, it was cited. The oil tends to soften the old and dry tar splashes and effectively removes them without injuring the surface of the car. Oil should be applied liberally and the cleaning commenced at the boundary of the stain and proceed to the center, the director admonished.

Information on the name of the comet that spanned the western horizon during the season of 1884 was referred to the naval observatory by Mr. Haskin. All questions answers to which are not available are referred by him to other sources for answering. Readers of the Appleton Post-Crescent have been urged to send all questions to the bureau and Mr. Haskin will make every effort to find the answers to all queries. They will be published in the daily question box published in the Post-Crescent or sent directly to the reader provided a stamped envelope is enclosed with the question.

LITERARY TREASURES

DISCOVERED ON RIVIERA

Grasse, France—(P)—The Riviera antiquarians have decided that they must perfect their knowledge of English books.

A case of seventy books offered for sale at the settlement of the estate of an eccentric English woman was bid by a French collector for less than a dollar. Finding that he could not read the books he sold them to a local dealer for ten dollars.

They were purchased the same day by an English book-buyer who estimates their value at many thousands of dollars. The lot includes first editions of Fielding, Smollett, John Milton, Sterne, Goldsmith, Lamb, Shelley, Keats, and Dickens.

TEXAN HOLDS ROPING RECORD MADE IN 1884

San Angelo, Texas—(P)—Jack Miles, constable here, holds one world's record which is apt to go unchallenged. Miles' record of 40 1-5 seconds for roping and tying steers weighing as much as 1,650 pounds was set in 1884 and now it is almost impossible to find a steer that heavy outside of the feed pens.

Miles would meet any man in defense of the record, although he says he is not as "spry" as he was once. The constable's challenge revealed that the rope is suffering an eclipse in West Texas. Few cowhands know how to lasso a steer now and the rope is disappearing from their equipment. Cattle are herded in pens instead of on the open ranges.

LOCUST WINGS PLAY DIRGE TO SUMMER

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

I HAVE heard the first locust. Perhaps you have heard him too. Locusts may not make you sad. They affect me miserably. With their wings they play a dirge to summer.

Only yesterday we scattered the seeds of our plumage, bachelor buttons and zinnias. The day before that we cleaned our houses and brought down our porch furniture from the attic.

We watched the calendar with secret pride. The days were getting longer. We were beating Old Man Time at his own game. We were pre-occupied with daylight and threw it around as a new-rich son throws his father's money.

Summer dresses grew under our busy fingers like flowers—pink, and blue, and all the maiden colors. Outdoors, roses and primroses had given way to hollyhocks and larkspurs. Our seeds were showing promise, too. One day a tight little green ball bloomed into a dazzling blue flower. That was a bachelor-button. The candy-tutopened its eyes. Yonder was something like a pink star. Cosmos! Then all the flowers came pell-mell. Summer was in full bloom.

We had a feeling that its lush beauty would last forever. The birds sang lustily. We knew them and their children by name. They had come to stay, it seemed! We felt that they, like flowers, must last forever. Then suddenly in the midst of it all I heard a locust!

Summer is slowly turning its back. We do not watch the sunset west by northwest any more. A rest from the larger arc he has traveled, now he stares at us kindly, but relentlessly from the point marked W on the compass. Soon we will notice him slipping below the horizon a little toward the south.

Seed-pods are forming in the gardens. The stores are advertising furs. Dark clothes are in the windows. The coal man urges us to buy.

I have heard the first locust.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

THE Vegetable then disappeared. The Tinymites were highly cheered. He'd left a monstrous bag of seeds that they could quickly plant. Said Clowny, "Oh, I can't plant these. I wish there something done with 'em." Then Scouty snapped, "Why sure you can! You never should say can't!"

The tines and the Goofy Goos agreed there was no time to lose. They dragged the bulging bag of seed off to a field, nearby. "I never was a farmer man, but, shucks, I'll do the best I can to plant 'em," shouted Carry. "At least we all can try."

One Goofy then exclaimed, "I know where I can find a dandy hoe. I'll also get a shovel and a rake. We'll need them all." "Hurrah!" yelled Carry. "I'll go to, if you don't mind if I help you. Be careful as we run across the field so we don't fall."

It seemed no time at all until they gave the happy bunch a thrill. They soon came running back with shovel, rake and hoe. It made the crowd all dance a jig, and then they started in to dig. They worked until they'd made a little garden, row by row.

"This dirt is great," said Scouty. "Gee, I'll bet it would be nice to be a farmer in the country wide, and grow all things to eat. Of course they'd get tired and worn from working mid the squash and corn, but when it comes to eating things, it must be quite a treat."

The corn and beans were soon laid low, with hopes that they would ripen. It didn't take the wee folk long 'cause they were all alert. They really did their work real good, and sowed the seeds just as they should. As soon as they were in the ground, they covered them with dirt.

(The Tinymites get a big surprise in the next story.)

SAINT AND SINNER

By Anne Austin

Faith was already preparing for bed that night before Bob joined her in their room. He had been talking with Cherry about the business when Faith left to give Cherry's baby his feeding.

"Pretty hair," Bob remarked casually, as he lifted a strand of her long, shining dark brown hair, which she was brushing conscientiously, despite her fatigue and the heat. "By the way, honey, I want you to get yourself a new dress for the Fruit's dinner party. Something extra swank. I saw a gorgeous dress in a window today. The sign said it was the new masterpiece, and I thought of you right off. How about it for once, sweet, and see how it feels?"

Faith smiled at him brilliantly, the pain which had constricted her heart all day miraculously relieved.

"I would like a new dress, a fluffy, frothy, spectacular dress," she acknowledged.

"Then get the dress I'm talking about," Bob grinned, beginning to undress. "It's in the Vanity Shop across from a Yellow Aster. It's a real swank and I had lunch there last night. It's a matter of fact, I'll go with you to get the dress. I'll be a perfect gentleman, I swear."

Faith looked at him with a smile. "If you want to go, I'll go with you. I'll be a perfect gentleman, I swear."

"I'll be a perfect gentleman, I swear," Faith repeated, smiling.

Plump Women Should Choose Gowns Of Dark Colors And Straight Lines To Make Figure Look Slender

BY HENRI BENDEL

NEW YORK.—This undoubtedly in age of youth. That being the case, certain types of women have their own troubles in finding suitable apparel.

First and foremost come those older women, the ones who, as they approach the middle years, incline to stoutness. What shall they choose, in this day of flat flappers, that will give them the dignified appearance they require and still bear some semblance to the straight line silhouette?

In the first place let them choose dark colors. When fashioning a street dress for a fuller figure reaching life's meridian, I always select blue or black in preference to reds, yellows, or other gay colors, and I select cream georgette lace instead of dash or white to fashion her a party frock.

SLENDERIZING LINES

Secondly, all emphasis in trimming should be vertical. Tucks running up and down are preferable every time to tiers, ruffles and flounces. Pointed yokes excel round or square ones. Jabots or trimmings, when possible, should have pointed ends.

Thirdly, contrasting material, when introduced should inevitably fashion a panel from neck to hem-line or in some way break the width, never the length. And all-over figured materials should ever be the small-pattered type—not the splashy flowers that tend to emphasize size.

Fourthly, one-piece models are the best.

I show today some of my most successful interpretations of slenderizing styles for the more mature figure.

The first is a dressy frock, one that owes its slenderizing effects to the manner in which hand-tailoring perfects sheer chiffon. It isn't the least tailored looking. Yet it relies entirely on tiny hand-tucked design for trimming.

Brown chiffon fashions it, that becoming caftan-like shade, and its entire waist is tucked. The sleeves, too, to form a generous puff at the elbow, while a tight cuff counteracts any tendency the puff might have to suggest size.

Smart tucks swathe the hip-line, with their fullness rippled out in front to form an effective cascade. The belt is finished with a rhinestone buckle which dresses up the frock with its sparkling chic.

A Rebois hat in pink and red gives a distinctly French touch to the costume.

Next I show a dark georgette frock for street wear. It is a navy Molyneux creation, effectively trimmed with white. Fullness is achieved by inverted pleats at front and both sides which are inserted where the pointed hem-line turns up.

The pointed waist to chic is also sponsored by the odd little white yoke, the white cuffs and the white-tipped ends of the scarf which is a capelet in the back. The slightly bouffed bodice of this frock is held in place by a siren corded belt which ends in a small sash on the left hip.

Pearls, of course, enhance a dark costume that features white trimming. And a sheer hat, with a touch of feather ornament gives a daintiness to the frock that a fuller figure appreciates.

BECOMING COAT DRESS

The third frock I display today is, in my opinion, the epitome of success for this special type of woman. For it is a coat dress. And the coat dress can give dignity and style lines more easily than any other style.

Vonnet designed it using black crepe in a heavy, luxurious quality. Most ingeniously does its deep collar fold into graceful revers that fall away to display a vestee of crepe with a tiny touch of flesh colored lace.

The tan, flat crepe faces the entire front width of the skirt and the sash that ties the frock shut. The back and front widths of this costume are fitted snugly to the hips, in order to give a slight blouse to the top. The sleeves are plainly tailored.

Because this coat dress does slenderize its wearer, she can choose a small hat. But most women whose figures incline to fullness should invariably choose a hat with a bit of brim.

2.—Yes, unless unforeseen accident prevent.

3.—Only if not.

on the subject I'd like to know what they are. I think you owe it to me—and to Cherry—to be frank. You've been telling me a story and an abominable woman for the last two or three days and I'd like to get on to your case.

Faith looked away from him sharply, her eyes wide, staring, her lips parted. "What do you mean?" she asked, her voice a hoarse whisper.

"I mean," Bob said, "that you've been telling me a story and an abominable woman for the last two or three days and I'd like to get on to your case."

FRESH FRUITS AND FOOD SHOULD BE EATEN DURING SUMMER MONTHS

BY SISTER MARY
GENERALLY speaking, the "fruits" that are in season should furnish our foodstuffs. This is true because these foods are in prime condition, fresh from garden or orchard and usually cheaper than out-of-season foods.

Fresh fruit makes an attractive appetizer or dessert during the summer months and when served "au naturel" saves the price of the labor of putting it up in containers, is much more wholesome in that it supplies necessary mineral salts to the body and makes a stronger appeal to the appetite. Constant care must be observed in the selection of fruit that it be perfect, neither underripe nor over-ripe. Most fruits have a decided tonic effect on the system and when ripe and without blemish are a valuable food.

VEGETABLES, TOO

What is true of fruits holds good of vegetables, hearty, vegetables mature late in the season for winter use, while the tender succulent ones come during the hot months when the body needs no extra fuel food for warmth, but does need chemical elements for energy. Soups and salads of fresh vegetables add variety to the daily menus and tempt a sluggish appetite even on the hottest day. Plenty of green salsa stirred with oil and lemon juice are most beneficial and should be included in at least one meal a day. Lemon juice is to be preferred to vinegar. Vinegar has no food value and is difficult for many persons to digest while lemon juice has a tonic effect and is rich in mineral salts.

FRESHNESS, ALWAYS

Meats and fish are distinctly seasonal. Oysters are served only during the "12" months and game is controlled by laws as to its seasons. Whenever fresh meats or fish can be obtained they are more to be desired than canned ones, but extreme care must be taken that all meats and fish be absolutely fresh and kept on ice until used.

FRESHNESS, ALWAYS

All baked-stuffs must be thoroughly baked, bread should be baked un-

However, on Aug. 21 and 24 of that year there were light frosts and local residents are hoping there will be no repetition during the present cold spell.

ARTESIAN WELLS SUPPLY
WATER TO FARM CROPS

Portales, New Mexico—Irrigation is the least of the trouble of farmers in this region. More than 200 artesian wells provide moisture for crops.

A shallow water "sheet" underlies the Portales valley and provides water for the wells. Some of them flow naturally and some have to be pumped. One of the wells has been pumping for 16 years and shows no sign of weakening.

By conserving the water from the wells and using scientific methods in their farming, the ranchers have been able to produce sturdy crops on land that once was known as the heart of the "Great American desert."

APPLETON GUN CLUB HOST TO SHOOTERS ON SUNDAY

Expect Attendance Of At Least 45 From Many Cities At Trap Tourney

Manitowoc, Green Bay, Kaukauna, Oconto, Lena to Have Large Delegations

The Appleton Angling and Shooting club is set to entertain at least 45 or 50 visiting shooters here Sunday when it plays host to members of the Northeastern Wisconsin Traps shooting association at a registered shoot at the club grounds on the Neenah road near the Lakeside Paper Co. A practice shoot to which all shooters are invited will be held at the club grounds at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

Shooters from six cities of the association, Green Bay, Manitowoc, Oconto, Kaukauna, Lena and Appleton, will take part in the shoot and several others from cities outside the association, such as Waupaca, are expected. The fact that a national trap tourney starts Friday and continues over Monday will cut the local entries considerably as many of the leading shooters of the vicinity are entered. They would come here otherwise.

The meet is a regular monthly affair for the shooters, as each club of the loop is sponsors one each month during the summer and early fall. Regular and special prizes in great numbers have been donated by Appleton merchants for every event. The events will start at 9 o'clock in the morning, rain or shine.

APPLETON YOUTH FOR BETTER BANDS

Stan Lowe, Director of Ticket Sales at Marquette, Has Queer Peave

Milwaukee—Everyone has a pet peeve, even a director of football ticket sales. Stanley Lowe, who is in charge of athletic tickets at Marquette university, always has maintained that not even a gate-crasher can perturb him, but underground secret service discloses that the bane of his life is rubber bands.

It's the truth. In one football season here, Lowe uses more than 30,000 rubber bands. At Marquette, and he still is on the lookout for one that won't break when put to the slightest exertion. Two seasons ago, he recalls, he no sooner had all the season's tickets sorted out and filed away in the safe than a steady staccato pop-pop began as the rubber bands started to break.

Most of the tickets had to be sorted over again.

Lowe is an Appleton boy, a graduate of the local high school in 1921. He has been cage manager and sales director at the Milwaukee school.

YANKIES TAKE 15-GAME LEAD BY BEATING SOX

The New York Yankees Friday were 15 full games ahead of Washington in the American league pennant quest. While the lowly St. Louis Browns were trimming the Senators in extra innings the Yankees were battling 12 exciting stanzas for a 5-4 victory over Chicago Thursday.

Alvin Crowder, formerly of the Washington pitching staff, received credit for the St. Louis victory over his ex-employer. Crowder relieved Ballou in the fifth inning and pitched eight scoreless innings, St. Louis winning in the twelfth, 6 and 5.

After three victories in a row over Cleveland, Philadelphia bowed to the Indians 2 to 1.

All games in the National League were postponed by rain.

TWO NEW OPPONENTS

Northwestern will meet two teams, Utah and Missouri for the first time this year on the football field.

Farmer Cooper, Terre Haute, Ind., defeated George Levine (10).

Billy Alber, Phoenix, won from Jimmy Finley, Louisville (10).

Italian Stone Crusher Latest Ring Sensation

BY JIMMY POWERS

New York—This Roberto Roberti, who up to a few weeks ago crushed stone daily in some small hamlet in Italy, seems to have the extraordinary fraternity in Gotham evincing an unusual amount of interest in him. Paulino Uccidum was the heavyweight sensation last season, and, as one of those things must be had to feed the rabble must every season, Roberti was imported this year. Perhaps to do as Paulino did—work himself into the dough.

This season's new heavyweight sensation is not the common or garden variety of cauliflower. He is the biggest and fastest balooka yet imported. His name is Roberto Roberti. He is 22 years old and weighs 215 pounds in first-class fighting trim. He measures 6 feet 4 inches in height and his reach is 72 inches.

There's quite a colorful background to this Italian son who stalks about Umberto Fucay's office with all the little grace of a Nubian leopard.

Back in the sunny stone quarry of his native Lucca in far off Italy, Roberti presided over his daily bread and wine and broke huge chunks of marble. An angel priest and friend of the Roberti family, Father Del Prete, watched the young giant use a crowbar for a toothpick, or something else soon burst while resting in the shade of the spigolatti trees. Suddenly the big Italian struck him. Why not ship the consignment of biceps or medals collected on the hoof direct to Madison Square Garden, N. Y., and born in on some of the easy dough lesser mastodons were picking up?

JACK GETS HEARTY GREETINGS AT CHI

Scores of Old Friends, Newspapermen Welcome Dempsey at Hotel

Chicago—(AP)—Inspired by a tumultuous welcome, Jack Dempsey Friday began looking over the scenes of his training for the forthcoming effort to regain the heavyweight championship. He "met the bunch" at the Morrison hotel.

Once settled in the bungalow on the roof, he greeted scores of old friends and newspapermen.

"It's great to be back in Chicago," Dempsey said to them all. "I see I've lots of friends here and I have always wanted to fight here. I don't know of any place I'd rather win back my title than right here. Ten years ago I used to go on for my act at a little west side theater here when the buzzer sounded."

His training will begin Monday at the Lincoln Park race track.

The latest word from Champion Gene Tunney's camp at Speculator, N. Y., was that Tunney would arrive late next week to finish his training at the Cedar Crest country club.

WILL HAVE 2 CAPTAINS

PLAY FOUR MATCHES IN TITLE TOURNEY

Shepherd Beats Davis in Only Champ Flight Battle at Butte des Morts

One match has been completed in the battle for the club championship at Butte des Morts Country club this week, three second flight matches have been played and a junior title clash also is off the books. The Directors trophy struggle, which has been going on for several months finally is ready for its finals as the last semi-final match has been completed.

In the club championship play Don Shepherd eliminated H. L. Davis, 5 and 4. In the second flight matches George Beckley and A. J. Hall staged the most interesting struggle, Beckley winning, 1 up on the 18th hole. Eric Lindbergh beat Dr. Blocher, 2 up, and Harry Oaks did the same to F. V. Heinemann in the other two second flight matches played. Beckley and Lindbergh will be the first pair ready for the second round match in the flight as they clash as the result of their first-round wins.

What Doctors Say About Smoking and Throat Protection

An advertisement based on the opinion of 9651* physicians

Mary Lewis, Famous Metropolitan Star, writes:

"Because they never irritate the throat and because of their finer flavor, Lucky Strikes are my favorite and of all whose voices are precious."

Mary Lewis

"Can I really smoke without irritating my throat, even if my throat is unusually sensitive, and even if I smoke as much as I please?"

A number of physicians, many of them leading physicians, in various parts of the United States, were recently asked these two questions:

Q1—In your judgment is the heat treatment or toasting process applied to tobaccos previously aged and cured, likely to free the cigarette from irritation to the throat?

9651 doctors answered this question "YES".

Q2—Do you think from your experience with LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes that they are less irritating to sensitive or tender throats than other cigarettes, whatever the reason?

11,105 doctors answered this question "YES".

You have noticed in the newspapers and magazines the opinions of many whose voices must be maintained unimpaired—opera singers, actors and actresses, men prominent in public life, radio announcers. These opinions are confirmed by the opinions of those whose business it is to know.

"It's toasted"
No Throat Irritation—No Cough.

*WE HEREBY CERTIFY that we have examined signed cards answering Questions One and Two and that there are 9651 affirmative answers to Question One and 11,105 affirmative answers to Question Two.

DON'T WASTE TIME,
PSYCHOLOGIST WARNSMemory Expert Discloses
Mind Training in New London
Lecture

Special to Post-Crescent.
New London—Speaking before a representative gathering of key men and department heads, managers of industrial plants and factory owners, Dr. Robert H. Thompson, memory expert, psychologist and character analyst, on Thursday evening gave the first of his lectures at the city hall.

The speaker, brilliant and forceful, quoted fully thirty poets and writers upon the value of time in its relation to the success of men and women. "Calling time the narrow isthmus between two eternities, he stated that to all of the same slogan or motto might apply 'Don't waste time.'" Then he proceeded to show that success is rather a result of concentrated thinking, the focusing of the mind upon one idea and carrying that idea to its ultimate end. In describing the average mind he stated that the mind is like a leaking pail which retains but a little of the precious fluid poured into it.

BRAINS VERSUS BEAUTY
Women of brains, he pointed out, are never outdistanced by the women of beauty in the long run, and gave as instances many famous beauties and their accomplishments as compared with an equal number of women who stand out as having brought to the world something more lasting—success.

Leading up to his lesson of the evening in training the mind to retain names, Dr. Thompson stated that men are at their best when they are natural, and that the greater they are the more natural they are.

His lessons of the evening were excellent material for concentrated thought. Memory tests of various types were given, simple ones growing more intricate as the evening progressed. A memory test for faces and names was one which was perhaps the most easily grasped. Friday's lecture will deal with the study of types, of personality and the intellectual and artistic capacities of brunettes and blondes.

Among the business houses and industrial plants which sent representatives were Hutton Lumber company, Wadham's Oil company, Hamilton Canning company, American Plywood corporation, Borden's, Christy's, First National bank, Freiburger's garage, Seigel's garage, Hi-Way Motor company, Buick Motor company, Farmer's State bank, Fay R. Smith company.

PITCHING MOUND
AGAINST NEENAH

Manager Les Thinks He Can Stop Up River Ball Wreckers

Kaukauna—Kaukauna meets Neenah in a doubleheader ball game Sunday at the Kaukauna ball park. It will be a battle for the cellar championship, as Kaukauna is in the cellar just a few games behind the sixth place Neenah crew.

One of the games is a postponed affair from earlier in the season. The Keweenaw are anxious to get these games on the win side of the percentage column and to see this Les Smith, the Keweenaw manager, has decided he will take a try at hurling and see if he can have more success than the other pitchers. "Lefty" has always had a pretty fair throwing arm and with a little practice should make an effective pitcher.

Neenah, however, has no weak aggregation. The paper city team has a league lineup as evidenced by the 15 to 5 beating administered to Appleton last weekend.

Smith will have Gertz and Kraft ready for the other game and for use as emergency hurlers if he should fail. Wenzel will do the receiving again Sunday. Reed, the new infielder, looks good according to the manager and probably will be kept in the lineup for the rest of the season.

Thursday the birds appeared hungry and lost little time in devouring the food. A large number of people watched a city woman feed the river. Thursday evening tossing food to the birds.

BODY OF STEEL KING IN HIS HOME TOWN

Without pomp or ceremony the body of Judge Elbert H. Gary, in its 1800-pound solid bronze casket, was brought to the town where he played as a boy—Wheaton, Ill. Banked by flowers, the casket is shown as it lay in state in the Gary Memorial Methodist Episcopal church.

Enough Room In State
For Many More Anglers

Wisconsin's vast network of lakes and streams could amply take care of the great horde of fishermen that invades its domain every summer. Properly handled, and real conservation actually in force, in spite of the vast numbers who every weekend seek the wild places it is seldom that you meet up with any of them on the stream.

We have just returned from the upper Wolf. We fished a dozen different places some of them miles apart and encountered just one fisherman on the whole trip. There may have been more of them on the stream, undoubtedly there were, but it is so extensive that there is room for all, and we had no competition.

The Wolf is, barring none, the finest stream left to us for all around fishing. From one pool above Shot Gun Eddy we took rainbows, speckled trout and small mouth bass, and on the same fly too. There is not another stream in the state on which you can do this.

HOME OF TROUT

From 12 1/2 Smoky Falls up there are stretches of rapids and swirling pools of foam covered black water for 25 miles, and these are the homes of the big rainbow and speckled trout and the gummy small mouth that knows no defeat until he is in the creel. We saw a little Indian boy not over ten years old with three rainbows weighing three, two and a half and two pounds. He had caught them in the first set of rapids above Shot Gun the night before using a common cotton line and alder pole which he cut on the bank. Conditions are not much different up there than they were years ago when no one, save the Indian, thought of fishing the Wolf in the wild, upper stretches. The fish are there, and they are just as big as ever.

We took some fine trout in the main river at the mouth of Nine Mile Creek where the big fontinals had congregated to enjoy the icy water as it enters the stream. Farther up we came to what is known as the Race Horse rapids. I believe this is the best water today in the whole state for big speckled trout. The best time to get them, however, is from dusk on. At that time they will take your fly with avidity for they are on the feed, and you can enjoy the sport as long into the night as you care to.

Flint Dead Pigeon

A dead homing pigeon was found Thursday evening by Ray DeCoster, 117 N. Meadost in the yard of his residence. The bird had evidently been dead for several days. It bore a band on its leg with the inscription "Kaukauna 1399-A1-27."

The bird is believed to have been the property of a Kaukauna pigeon owner.

EXTRADITION DOESN'T MEAN MAN'S ARREST

Madison—(AP)—Extradition papers "do not always get their man," according to Attorney General Reynolds in an opinion issued today.

The opinion was rendered in response to a letter from Gerald J. Bollan, District Attorney of Marathon county, Wausau, asking whether Governor Zimmerman could demand the return of a Wausau offender who is living in Indiana.

The district attorney informed Mr. Reynolds that the offender after being divorced from his wife had moved to Indiana, where after living for a few months stopped making payments to his former wife contrary to the court's order.

The opinion pointed out that this man was not a fugitive from justice because he had committed his offense in the State of Indiana. "The attorney general suggested that Governor Zimmerman be asked to demand the extradition of the offender, however, because in similar cases the State of Michigan had complied with his request. The attorney general admitted that another similar case had failed in the case of the State of Illinois.

In another opinion granted to Governor Zimmerman the attorney general informed the governor that he could remove a notary public from office "at pleasure."

He suggested, however, that the governor give the notary public notice of a hearing and an opportunity to be heard before removing him from office.

Phone for Food

It's The Better Way

WHAT do you do when it rains? Don't you telephone for your groceries? And isn't it much more convenient than going to the store to place your order?

There is a knack to getting the housework out of the way the first thing in the morning. It is something many wives attempt with varied success.

Getting in the days' stock of groceries is an important part of the housework—perhaps the most important part. And every wife does not realize that the best way to get groceries is to phone for them and have them delivered.

You eat EGGS.. MUFFINS TOAST.. for breakfast, don't you?

AND vegetables for lunch... peas... beans... an omelette perhaps? And a nice pan-broiled steak with mashed potatoes for dinner? All right. Then your household are candidates for Oak Grove Margarine! Spread the muffins with it! Put generous lumps of it on the toast. Serve it with the vegetables. Use it in the pan as you broil the steak. Delicious? It certainly is.

You will want to serve Oak Grove Margarine at every meal, every day. Its deliciously salted taste makes it an ideal spread for bread. It gives a fine, delicate texture when used in baking cakes. As a shortening it may be used in the usual amounts in pies, hot breads and cookies. Oak Grove Margarine should be found in your ice-box just as any other staple.

Oak Grove Margarine is made under United States government inspection. It is made fresh daily. Try a pound today. Your grocer has it. And notice how smoothly it spreads. You'll come back for more. You'll be pleased and satisfied. And if you aren't, your grocer will cheerfully refund your money.

Did You Ever Count the Illinois Cars in Appleton?

Some day when you happen to be walking down College-ave, count the cars with Illinois license plates. They almost outnumber Wisconsin cars.

These tourists have come to Wisconsin for its beautiful lakes, rivers, woods and scenery. The fame of these draw thousands of people to Wisconsin every year.

If you could only distinguish the out of the city cars, parked in the neighborhood of VoECKs Bros., you would marvel at the number of people who come from nearby cities to buy meat at VoECK Bros. Although the fame of VoECKs Bros. meat has not traveled as far as that of the state, hundreds of people from nearby cities have heard of VoECKs Bros. better meat and are regular patrons of this market.

JACK LOCKWILL IN THE WOODS

The excited girl would not be restrained. Addressing the judge, she started to tell her story in staccato broken English. "Don't listen to her!" shouted Elam Frye. "She's lyin', judge!" "Sit down and keep still or I'll have you arrested for contempt o' court!" barked his Honor, banging the table with his gavel. "Go on, my girl, but speak slower so I can understand you."

The courtroom was hushed as Bambi told her story of what had happened. It corroborated the testimony of Jack and his chums in every particular.

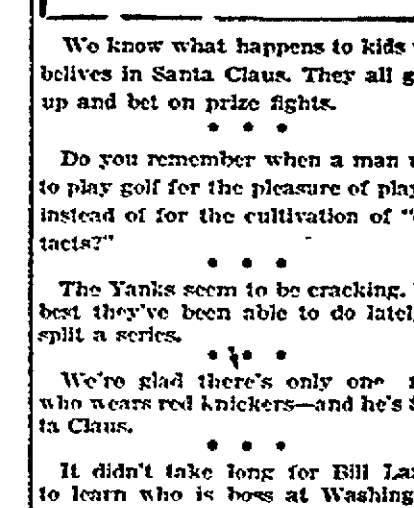

His Honor questioned Bambi in a kindly way, and she clung to her statement in detail. "I'm entirely satisfied," said the judge, "that this is a trumped-up charge against these young lads, and I hereby discharge them and order their release. I likewise order that all costs shall be paid in full by the complainant, Elam Frye." The spectators broke into a loud cheer. (To Be Continued)

YANKEES MAY KEEP BROWNS FROM WINS

A. L. Champions Already Have Taken 15 of 22 Games from St. Louis

Winning an entire season's series of 22 games is a rarity in major league baseball, but the New York Yankees are approaching that record in opposing the Browns this year.

So far the Yankees and Browns have engaged in 15 games and Miller Huggins' American League champions have not lost a game. The data on the season's series follows:

Date	Team	R	H	E	Team	R	H	E
May 10	New York	8	7	1	Browns	7	8	2
May 11	New York	4	7	1	Browns	2	8	0
May 12	New York	4	9	0	Browns	3	9	1
May 13	New York	3	0	0	Browns	1	10	0
May 16	New York	3	9	2	Browns	1	7	2
June 17	New York	3	9	2	Browns	2	4	2
June 18	New York	8	12	3	Browns	4	11	1
July 16	New York	5	10	1	Browns	2	6	1
July 17	New York	5	7	2	Browns	4	9	0
July 18	New York	10	12	1	Browns	6	12	2
July 19	New York	6	10	0	Browns	1	7	2
July 26	New York	15	14	1	Browns	1	6	4
July 28	New York	12	13	0	Browns	2	8	4
July 27	New York	4	6	0	Browns	1	4	0
July 28	New York	9	12	2	Browns	4	12	0

In 1909 Chicago won 21 out of 22 from Boston in the National League and in 1904 Boston won 20 out of 22 from Washington in the American League. The latter score was repeated by Philadelphia against St. Louis in 1911.

There's a chance that the Yankees will set a new record.

"BIG TIME" PLANNED FOR RED ARROW VETS

Various Forms of Entertainment Are Arranged by Eau Claire Hosts

Eau Claire—(P)—Banquets, parades, and a full entertainment program will feature the reunion of the 127th Infantry, 119th Machine Gun Battalion and other units of the 32nd Division to be held in Eau Claire September 3 and 4.

Major R. F. Sortomme, in charge of local arrangements, believes that over 500 visitors from all parts of Wisconsin and northern Michigan will be in attendance.

The women visitors will be offered various forms of entertainment. The local members of the American Legion Auxiliary, who have been de-failed to take care of the woman visitors, have arranged theater parties, dances, and get-togethers at Irvine Park.

NO ADDRESSES. On Saturday evening the Red Arrow veterans will be motored to the Elks Club where a banquet will be given. An entire vaudeville program of five acts will furnish the entertainment at the banquet. No addresses are scheduled but there will be brief talks by visiting notables.

Sunday morning separate meeting places will be provided for various units of the division and at 10 o'clock there will be a general meeting at the city auditorium where plans will be outlined for the next reunion of the 32nd Division.

A parade will be staged in the afternoon by the 105th Cavalry band, Service troop of the 105th cavalry, Eau Claire; headquarters troop, 105th Cavalry, of Stanley; Battery "C", of Chippewa Falls; Company "B", 128th Infantry, of Eau Claire, and other units in the military section. The 32nd Division section may be led by Theodore Steinmetz and a reassembled 127th Infantry band, composed of men who were members of this band in France.

MILITARY TOURNAMENT A military tournament and horse show has been scheduled after the parade.

At least four general officers will attend: General C. R. Boardman, Oshkosh, who commanded the 64th Brigade; General W. M. Lee, Oconto, commander of the 127th Infantry in France; General G. O. O'Connell, Madison, commander of Company "B" and later the second battalion of the 127th in France, and Adjutant General Ralph Immell, of Madison.

General William Lassiter, U. S. A., commander of the 32nd Division in Germany, may attend the reunion. Col. B. C. Langdon of the 127th Infantry has been invited but his duties as military instructor at an eastern university will prevent him from attending.

Aids in Pennant Fight. Dave Danforth is proving a big aid to New Orleans in their fight for the pennant this season.

Clyde Hull, Clark, S. D., knocked out Irish Tommy Jordan, Brooklyn (2).

The Appleton Post-Crescent Offers to its Readers a Booklet on Zion Park.

The wildest spot in America, discovered centuries ago by Coronado, visited by a few lost Mormon pioneers, but otherwise shunned and feared, the canyon land of southwest Utah has been reached by road and rail and made a National Park.

A fine picture booklet of this newest wonderland has been prepared for our Washington Information Bureau.

It is worth while, whether you ever go to Zion National Park or not.

Order by the attached coupon.

CONVERTED

DR. LOUIS E. FORD

No dental student at Southern California had time, Dean Louis E. Ford of the dental school once thought, for athletics. That opinion changed when Bud Houser studied dentistry and changed again when Charles Borah enrolled as a dental student. Dr. Ford now is one of the biggest boosters of athletics at the Los Angeles school and insists that all students in his school participate in some form of athletics.

DESPITE COST, MOTORS INCREASE IN JAPAN

Tokyo—(P)—Taxes on motor cars and the high cost of gasoline apparently have had little effect on the importation of automobiles in Japan.

Government figures show that approximately 50,000 motor vehicles are in use in this country, of which Tokyo possesses 12,500. In 1912 there were only about 500 motor cars in the empire, the increase during the past 15 years having been about 50 or 40 per cent per year.

FOUR WINS OF WALTER TRAVIS NOT TO BE TIED

New York—No golfer can equal Walter J. Travis' four victories in the National Amateur meet this year.

There are several amateurs entered in the meet who have held the national title twice, but none has been amateur king three times. The twice-holders of the title who'll play this season at Minkahda are Bobby Jones, Robert A. Gardner, Chick Evans and Chandler Egan.

Other winners back again for more honor include Francis Ouimet, Dave Herron, Jesse Gullford, Bill Fownes, Jr., George Von Elm and Max Marton.

Versatile Dempsey Is Star As Hotel Manager

BY DAN THOMAS

Los Angeles, Calif.—It doesn't seem quite right to describe Mr. William Harrison "Jack" Dempsey with anything except fighting words these days—but that's just what is going to happen in this story.

When he gets out of fighting togs and into street clothes, this same Dempsey is quite the busiest business man in Los Angeles. In fact during his short sojourn here after he had administered a sleeping powder to Jack Sharkey of Boston, Dempsey didn't have five minutes that he really could have called his own.

Jack has become a real artist at juggling figures since he and "Doc" Kearns chose different highways. Besides being kept pretty busy on financial arrangements for his coming scrap with the world's champion, Gene Tunney, Jack had to put his Barbara hotel back on its feet again.

The Barbara is more than a business enterprise to Jack—it's a much treasured pet. The writer sometimes believes that Dempsey cares more for the Barbara than he does for the leather mitts. When he arrived here from New York, Jack stopped at the hotel to see how things were going even before he dashed home to his sick wife, Estelle Taylor.

Jack spent most of his time around the hotel when he wasn't training. And he certainly turned things upside down.

"That's the way things always go here when I am away," Jack told me. "These fellows think that as long as the place shows a profit nothing else matters. If they had their way we would be in the red in short order. When I come back after the Tunney fight, I'm going to let about half the employees go and get new help. Perhaps that will improve conditions. It costs money to fire people, though because it takes time to break in new ones to fill their places."

When Dempsey was around the hotel, he could be seen doing almost anything from playing bell-hop to instructing the chef how to run a kitchen. I happened to go into the kitchen with Jack one day when he found some dirt on the stove. He immediately hit the ceiling, figuratively.

speaking. It looked for a few moments as if the poor chef was going to lose his job right on the spot.

"Dirt is one thing I won't tolerate," Dempsey remarked as he was going through his mail a little later. "That will slow down business quicker than anything else and as long as I own this hotel it is going to make money."

That's Jack all over. He is the most liberal man I have ever known with his friends and family, but whether he's fighting or running the hotel, he is doing it to make money.

WORK PROGRESSING ON 2 NEW SCHOOLS

Two new rural school buildings, the Woodlawn and Pleasant Dale, will be finished for the opening of school in the fall, it was reported.

The Woodlawn building was started Monday, one wall was partly up Thursday and it was believed the frame work would be completed by the end of next week. The contractor was given seven weeks to complete the building for school sessions to begin Oct. 1.

The Pleasant Dale school was started about two months ago. This building should be ready for school by Sept. 1, it was stated.

CARNIVALS MUST BAR GAMBLING OR FORFEIT LICENSES

Assistant Attorney General Rules That Conviction Is Unnecessary

Madison—(AP)—If the state treasury agent has evidence that a carnival concession has violated the gambling or immoral exhibition statute of the state laws, the license of the carnival may be revoked without obtaining a conviction. It was held in an opinion given today by Michael J. Dunn, assistant attorney general.

The statutes provide that the license of any carnival may be revoked if the carnival violates the gambling or immoral exhibition statute. As to whether it is necessary that a certified copy of a judgment of conviction be taken away, the attorney general said: "I doubt whether it is necessary as a condition precedent to revocation that a conviction be obtained for violating the gambling or immoral exhibition statute," the opinion states. "In fact it is my opinion that, where the treasury agent has evidence of such violations, irrespective of subsequent convictions, he is warranted in taking away the privileges."

CHANGES IN COOKING ARE SHOWN AT FAIR

Improvements in Past 50
Years Illustrated by Fine
Exhibits

Seymour—Was the mother of 50 years ago a better cook than the mother of today? A glimpse of the tempting array of bread, cake, doughnuts, pies and cookies exhibited at the Seymour Fair, August 22 to 25, probably will answer that question in the negative.

Loaves of bread varying in sizes and quality were made ten years or more ago. There were round loaves and square loaves, flat loaves and tall loaves, little loaves and big loaves, made and baked in many different ways.

Visitors to the fair will find that an entirely different kind of loaf is being made today. The modern loaf weighs about a pound and is baked in a tin of standard size. Housewives are using practically the same recipes. Judges say bread made in this way is superior.

Styles in pies, doughnuts, cakes and cookies have changed just as much in recent years as they have with bread. Improved recipes have been worked out in every field by students of cooking and adopted by the American housewife. In fact, judges assert that there isn't a single thing entered in the baking exhibits of the fair today which does not score higher than it did a few years ago.

The Seymour Fair is devoting much attention to women's activities. Liberal premiums are offered for the best displays of baking, sewing and canning. Mrs. B. E. Luedke is superintendent of the canning and baking. Mrs. C. C. McDonnell, Miss E. Macchaelis and Mrs. Charles Blanshan are superintendents of the sewing.

FINISH REPAIRS AT VOCATIONAL SCHOOL

Repairs at the Appleton vocational school have been nearly completed and the painting and varnishing probably will be done this week. It was reported at the school. The blower system installed for the cabinet making department will be ready for use in the fall.

Two of the classrooms on the second floor have been re-finished. All of the hall floors and basement floors are to be painted and the classroom floors varnished.

Old Wisconsin Capitol Building Tourist Mecca

When the first Wisconsin legislature convened, no small part of the 46-day session was given to the selection of a location for the future capital of the state. The meeting was held at Belmont, a village in the southwestern corner of the state, in Lafayette county, which, naturally, had hopes of becoming the permanent capital of the state.

The site of the first legislative meeting is today marked by a state park, known as Old Belmont. Consisting of two acres, it is situated between the Platt and Belmont mounds, which are visible for 25 miles in every direction.

LUMBER FROM EAST
Wisconsin territory was created by act of Congress April 20, 1836. The temporary site of the territorial government was established at Belmont, a village built for the occasion with the possible hope that it might become the capital city of the future state, a hope which was soon shattered.

In anticipation of the coming of the first territorial legislature a frame building had been erected by James Atchison, from whom it was subsequently rented for the use of the legislature. This building was a two-story structure with a battlement front 25 x 40 feet in dimensions. The timber for the building was purchased in Pittsburgh and brought down the Ohio river, up the Mississippi by steamboat, and landed at Galena from whence it was hauled 20 miles to Belmont. The interior was lathed with split oak and plaster, making a very substantial frame building for the time.

The territorial legislature met in this building in a 46 day session between October 25 and December 8, 1836. A long struggle took place in both the council and the house of representatives to fix the location of the future capitol city.

At the present time, the curve is very sharp and motorists going to Butte des Morts golf club are obliged to make a very slow turn. It is planned to widen and slightly bank the curve to lessen danger of accidents and to speed up traffic.

APPLETON C. M. T. C. YOUTHS WIN HONORS

Appleton boys are doing well in machine gun work at the Citizens Military Training camp at Fort Sheridan, Ill., according to reports from the camp. The youths are members of Co. D at the camp.

Alvin Liehonen won second prize in machine gun marksmanship for the company and Carl Kunitz and Charles Schaefer qualified as sharpshooters. Kenneth Downer, another local boy, qualified as a marksman with the "one-pounder."

ers, including single lady dancing act, balancing and stunts of strength, Lewis and Lewis strong man act, such as breaking bones on woman's body, allowing auto to pass over unprotected human body, heavy weight lifting, pulling autos with teeth and bending bars of iron. Other free acts are now under the consideration by the management of the fair.

The president, secretary and superintendents of the departments are busy inducing producers to bring in exhibits and, judging from the exhibits already promised by people who will sign up later, the coming fair will be the largest ever held on the Hortonville grounds.
